HELP THANKSGIVING HAPPEN

The Longwood Medical Area/Mission Hill and Fenway Food Project's annual "Thanks for Giving" canned food drive has been scheduled for the week of November 16-20. Canned food containers will be conveniently placed throughout the Longwood Medical Area. Protein-rich foods are sorely needed. The Food Project encourages the donation of such items as tuna, peanut butter, canned meats, macaroni & cheese dinners, beans and peas, rice baby foods and cereal. I don't need to tell anyone how important this is. Hunger is for real; here's an easy chance to do something that means something. Thank you. For more information contact Patty Downey at 738-5800 x5410 (N.E. Baptist Hospital).

PUBLIC SPEAKING SEMINAR

Do you have the jitters? Do you get up in front of the class and forget the lines? Do you bite your nails? Do you have stage fright?

If so, then this Public Speaking Seminar is for you. This will be a supportive group seminar where students will be able to share public speaking fears and explore ways to gain confidence to express themselves in front of others.

The course will be led by Jonathan Silverman, Director of Academic Advising, and Barbara Davis, Director of Counseling. The first seminar will be held November 10th, 12:30-1:45 in the Conference room. Tower 6th floor.

STUDENT LOAN NEWS

On Monday, October 19, President Reagan signed a second Gramm-Rudman sequester order which affects, for all students, the 'origination fee' lenders are allowed to charge. On all loans scheduled for disbursement after October 20, lenders are now required to deduct 5 1/2% instead of 5% "off the top of the loan". This necessitates new disclosure statements and will result in a momentary delay in student loan processing. Hopefully, the lenders will have these new notes shortly and resume their processing

Faculty News

On October 15, Diana Korzenik, our College's Art Education Chairperson addressed the conference of the National Association of Schools of Art & Design in Cincinnati, Ohio. Her subject was the changes in k-12 art curriculum under debate and their possible impact on future art students.

On November 7, Diana Korzenik addresses a symposium at Rochester, New York at the Margaret Woodbury Strong Museum, where a conference American Play-1820-1914 will take place. Her paper Drawing as Play describes the highly popular sets of drawing cards and how-to-draw books children and their families used between 1820 and 1860.

Lowry Burgess, Professor of Media and Performing Arts, and head of the graduate MFA program at Massachusetts College of Art gave a speech at the Emerson Umbrella Center in Concord on October 15 entitled Artists as Visionaries. Professor Burgess was referred to in the Concord News as an "internationally known environmental artist".

Professor Burgess is the creator of The Boundless Aperture , the first non-scientific payload scheduled to fly in the space shuttle.

The Palfrey St. School in Watertown announced the addition of three new faculty members in October, two of whom have ties to Mass Art. Olga Solomita of Cambridge will be teaching photography, and is currently working toward her M.F.A. here at Mass Art; and Janis Levine also of Cambridge, will teach Studio Art and coordinate the recruitment of new students. She has taught at Mass Art and was an Admissions Counselor. We wish them both all success in their new positions.
